Dear .....

I am writing to you because of poor quality of your services. My house belongings has been damaged as a result of inadequate securing them during the transportation. It is clear that there has been a breach of contract, and therefore I demand redress compensation for these violations.

This document is a formal step in calling for compensation and allows avoid taking court action. Please respond to this letter within 30 days. If there is no response to that I intend to issue proceedings against you in the county court, which may be associated with covering the legal costs, which I will bear.

On ...../...../..... I hired your company to provide a house removal service. I agreed to pay you £..... for completing this removals. On the moving date, which was ...../...../..... all my household goods were packed securely, also marked as fragile where necessary.

You provided the services, but:
